Jayson is an associate in the Land Use and Entitlement Law section, focusing on regulatory takings, inverse condemnation, constitutional law, and issues arising from real property ownership.

Prior to law school, Jayson served as Deputy Chief of Staff to a Santa Barbara County Supervisor where he helped constituents navigate complex regulatory issues, often including land use disputes. He also advised on land use appeals coming before the Board of Supervisors, as well as other regulatory decisions affecting development, agriculture, wine, and tourism.

After graduating with Honors from The University of Chicago Law School, Jayson accepted a position as law clerk to Judge Kenneth K. Lee on the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. Jayson is also admitted to practice in the Central and Southern Districts of California and the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.
